Management Training Seminar Offers Lessons from Eisenhower and D-Day
*WWII Leader has Much to Teach Today's Managers in Stressful Times

GETTYSBURG, Penn., August 19, 2013— For the business or government executive facing constant budget-tightening, new training options offer opportunities to learn, without all the “bells and whistles” of travel, over-night stays, and fancy tours.

Historic Leadership Training, of Gettysburg, Penn., has designed a series of one-day leadership seminars that feature its hallmark case studies (historic role models), but keep costs to a minimum. Managers get classroom training, with movie clips bringing the case studies to life.

This fall, a one-day Eisenhower program will examine the general's remarkable ability to build a “team of rivals” into a focused, multi-national, multi-services team for the D-Day landings in Europe. Participants will examine Ike's preparation for leadership—his values, his education, his work and family relationships, his military training and goals—and compare their own preparation for leadership in stressful times. Program and registration details are available on-line at <http://www.historicleadershiptraining.com> or contact Antigoni Ladd, an instructor with Historic Leadership Training at 717-334-9089 or AntigoniLadd@TigrettCorp.com.

The Eisenhower leadership program, set for Monday, September 23 at the Hotel Gettysburg in downtown Gettysburg, coincides with the National Park Service's World War II Weekend, which runs Saturday and Sunday, September 21-22 at the Eisenhower National Historic Site. Individuals may attend the Park Service programs, visit a living history encampment, hear WWII veterans' stories, or visit the national cemetery for special tours of the gravesites of veterans killed in key WWII battles. Information on these events may be found on the NPS Website, <http://www.nps.gov/eise/parknews/world-war-ii-weekend.htm>.

Why use history? The challenges these historic leaders faced remain familiar today—how to do more with less, how to inspire people working under tough conditions, how to empower others to adapt to a world of constant change. Their solutions can inspire in ways that conceptual, lecture-based training never will. To date, over 6,000 managers have participated in this unique—and memorable—training.*
